As a family's wealth grows and expands beyond a single generation, financial needs often evolve. The demands of managing a family's wealth and everyday household tasks can become overwhelming and, often, their unique needs go beyond what a typical financial professional can offer. This is where a family office can help.

In the simplest of terms, a family office manages and oversees an affluent family's wealth, including their investments, tax planning, and estate planning. However, some private firms, like Hutchinson Family Offices, strive to take the family office to a higher level in order to simplify a family's complex financial life. Our Family Office model offers the highest level of service to provide your family with order, simplicity, and financial confidence.

A common question is, "What is the difference between a financial advisory firm and a family office?" Typically, a financial services firm may offer asset management, financial planning, and investment strategies with the goal of helping clients pursue their financial goals. A family office, on the other hand, exclusively works with affluent families, serving both their financial and lifestyle needs to provide them with the freedom to focus on what they enjoy. While every family office is unique, many offer comprehensive wealth management, as well as the various other needs of a family.

At Hutchinson Family Offices, we seek to free families from the time, effort, and energy required to manage wealth and coordinate advice. Once we understand your family's current circumstances, goals, and unique needs, we develop strategies to help preserve and potentially grow your wealth and take over the time-consuming tasks associated with managing your complex financial affairs.

Working with a family office can benefit families in a number of ways, including:

- Preserving wealth through proactive management and appropriate strategies
- Mitigating risk by diversifying investments
- Assisting with the transfer of wealth from one generation to the next through strategic asset allocation and estate planning
- Working with other professionals, including attorneys and CPAs, to ensure all advisor work is coordinated and strategies are integrated
- Proactive, personalized, and responsive service

Our Family Office model seeks to offer the highest level of service to provide your family with order, simplicity, and financial confidence.

Working with a family office may also be ideal for affluent families for a number of other reasons. First, a family office takes the time to understand a family's entire financial situation, including their assets and liabilities. The advice they offer takes into consideration the family's personal situation, goals, and preferences, and is tailored to their needs. And rather than the firm only working with one individual, a family office works together with the entire family.

The services a family office provides may vary, depending on a family's unique needs. The ultimate goal is to assist with any financial and lifestyle decisions that may require advice, guidance, or professional administration. Because we work exclusively with wealthy families, we understand their unique needs.

At Hutchinson Family Offices, our goal is to take on the burden of managing a family's complex financial lives so they can focus on building their businesses, nurturing future generations, and pursuing their philanthropic goals. Acting as advocates for their needs, we strive to ensure their financial affairs are completely aligned with their goals, dreams, and family philosophy.

We work with a limited number of wealthy families to provide the highest level of service to our clients. By working with a select group of clients, we believe we can better provide concierge services on a personal level. We care deeply about each family member and their future. At Hutchinson Family Offices, we want our families to view us as partners in their success and we are deeply honored by their trust.

With the support of a skilled team of multidisciplinary professionals, we strive to help our clients attain confidence in their financial well being.
